Harnessing Parental Engagement

A free webinar from the Serious Violence Prevention Partnership

For young people on the verge of criminality, family relationships are crucial – they can make or break future life chances. Improving parental engagement can help ensure the vital emotional, practical and financial support that's needed to keep vulnerable young people on track and restore multi-generational faith in the criminal justice system.

In this webinar, you'll learn more about tackling this difficult social policy area and understand how harnessing parental engagement could help reduce reoffending.

Guest speakers include:

- ❖ Becca Hewitt: Is chair of the South Devon and Dartmoor Community Safety Partnership and will share her experience in using online platforms to engage with parents more universally. It's been quite a journey!
- ❖ Tina Ley: Is the Service Manager for Devon Youth Intervention Team and will be sharing her experiences of a targeted approach through the Turning Corners Parent Support Group.
- ❖ Jess Keast-Towns & Emma Leeman: Are both Restorative Justice and Families Practitioners working for Shekinah and will be sharing their experience of parental engagement through the restorative justice work they undertake via 'Make Amends'.

Chair:

- ❖ Rebecca Skellett: Is the Programme Director of the Serious Violence Prevention Partnership
